Different Point of

1984

The 1988-89 school year started on August 29, with that dreaded first day. I remember thinking that this was going to be a special year, since it was my last year in high school

SENIORS 2

Being a senior kept me quite busy. At the first of the year we started things out right by initiating the freshmen. Cake walks, a dinner, a carnival and a trash haul all added to funds for our senior sneak to New York and Florida. The juniors kept busy by selling magazines and filling the pop and candy machines. The sophomores' new responsibility was running the concession stand. Their other activities were a trash haul and a supper. The freshman finally got into the grove of things. They did a trash haul among other activities.

EVENTS 12

Everyone kept busy with all the social events and sports. Homecoming, Winter Festival and Prom were fun for everyone. All sports teams worked hard but lack of depth kept them struggling. The Student Council played an active role in school affairs. The Scholastic Bowl Team competed on Matchwits among other meets. The high school band had five students to begin the year but had several more students join at the semester. They enjoyed playing under the direction of first year teacher, Mr. Liest. Our senior play was a comedy that everyone seemed to enjoy. Since there were only four of us, we called upon some underclassmen to help.

PROM 30

Prom was alot of work for the juniors but was worth the trouble. With all the help from the community it turned out to be a special event for everyone. The night was capped off by the crowning of Tom Scott, as king and me (Michele) as queen.

SPECIAL AWARDS 32

As the year began to wind down, it came time for the athletic banquet. Many athletic awards were given, along with a slide show presented by us (the publications class). Awards night honored all academic achievements of the students. Some special awards were the naming of Mr. & Miss PHS and the highest scholastic average.

STAFF 34

The school was kept in order by third year superintendent Orrin Oppliger, with the help of the teachers and staff, of course. Some new (but not so new) faces were at Plainview, as two of the three new teachers were substitutes in previous years. The combination of these teachers with the returning teachers kept all students learning new things.

JH EVENTS 36

The junior high kept themselves busy with ball games, school work and goofing around. In between history outlines and math homework, there were carnival booths and the Winter Festival Dance. As usual, the junior high had fun, while learning lots.

ELEMENTARY EVENTS 52

The elementary students kept themselves busy, too. The teachers helped make school educational, but fun. They kept busy with numerous holiday parties, library time and computer work. They all enjoyed participating in the Eads Elementary Track Meet.

The last major event that took place was graduation. The Kindergarten Class got all dressed up to show their family and friends what good little first graders they would make. The eighth graders could hardly contain their excitement on the night of May 12. They were all ready to leave junior high and take on the challenge of high school. We seniors, on the other hand, were sad but happy, too. We showed that we were ready to be on our own, but not quite sure about leaving our families and friends.

MEMORIES 58

This school year has proved to be an exciting, educational, and profitable time. Over the year many people shared in numerous activities. All people involved got caught up in the closeness of the school. I am sure you will agree that this year has been a memorable year for everyone.

A special thanks goes to the hard working Publications Class, and our sponsor, Mrs. Tuttle. This years annual is going to seem different as all stories are expressed from "A Different Point of View." We would like to thank Tom Scott for all his time in writing the stories. I hope you enjoy this year's annual! Michele Hopkins-Editor

William I. Reazin (1942-1989)

In the battle of life; it is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbled, or where the doer of a deed could have done better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs and comes up short again and again because there is no effort without error and a shortcoming; who dies actually striving to do the deeds; who knows the great enthusiasm, the great devotion, spends himself in a worthy cause; who at best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement; and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold timid souls who have tasted neither victory nor defeat.

Motto There are many roads we have crossed, many hills we have climbed, and so many dreams we have yet to realize.

We, the class of 1989, being of sound mind and body do hereby will our: ability to earn money so that we can have a great sneak to the class of 1991; ability to stay out of trouble to the class of 1993; ability to have everyone make the honor roll to the class of 1992; ability to keep one sponsor all through junior high and high school to the class of 1993; ability to understand all sports terms (like huddle) to all incoming sports teams; ability to say almost anything to teachers to all other classes.

I, Michele Hopkins, will my: ability to go out one weekend and not be in trouble the next to Julie Earl; temper to Lynn Scherler; love of Pepto-bismol and my car to Jenny Rorex; ability to stay away from people the knock on your window at 3:00 a.m. to Heather Kelley; ability to go to basketball practice more often than not to Angela Fuqua and Donna Specht; ability to pass a history test to Jay Wilson; ability to stay out of trouble to Chad Tuttle and David Hamer; height and basketball ability to Philip Butler; cheerleading ability to Tish Lening.

I, Tom Scott, will my: loss of hair and ability to write to Ryan Murdock; ability to get A's and B's for grades to Jay Wilson; ability to run track to all slow people at Plainview; ability to drive the speed limit to Jeff Coen, Jay Wilson, and Joel Woelk; ability not to complain to Curtis Weber and Ryan Murdock; ability to respect authority to Danny Specht; ability to control my hormones to Joel Woelk; ability to have a pleasant personal hygiene to all people that stink.

I, David Splitter, will my: first chair trumpet position to Jay Wilson; point guard position to Lynn Scherler; desire to make good grades to Donna Specht; wheat truck to anyone who doesn't have a car; ability to procrastinate to Mrs. Palmer; ability to stay away from alcohol to anyone who will take it; ability to come to school on Mondays after football games to Ryan Murdock.

I, Patrick Kelley, will my: ability to have one girlfriend all through high school to Jeff Coen; ability to control my temper to Ryan Murdock; love of Oklahoma University to Lynn Scherler; my black sports car to my sister; ability to keep my locker clean to Curtis Weber; ability to hit people in the arm and get away with it to Jay Wilson; ability to improvise in football to Danny Specht.

Juniors

Keeping me and my friend, the candy machine, full at all times was a full time job for the juniors. When I was full and my money box emptied, the juniors would work at other tasks like the prom or carnival. It was different having the juniors in charge of me, but it was nice to know them. Miss Fees filled me several times and did a lot of other work for the class.

Sophomores

I was first uncapped on Aug. 29, 1988 and set to work. As I was writing along, I learned more than I wanted to know about verb usage, quadratic formulas, biomes, and Macbeth. I also had fun keeping the money total at the concession stand. The sophomores took me with them at the trash haul. At least I didn't have to lift those barrels. Another fun time I had with the sophomores was the Jail. But I am out of ink, and soon shall be thrown away. Life passes for everyone, even the life of a pen.

The freshmen spent several hours sitting behind me working hard to keep their grades up and pass their geography tests. If they weren't using me for classroom work, they were busy with trash hauls, tree cleaning or the carnival. Their sponsor, Mr. Spreitzer, always kept them busy and entertained.

FRESHMAN POEM

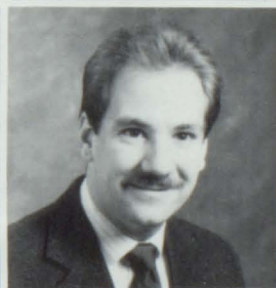

MANY, many years ago when we entered this little school,
 There were some upper classmen we knew someday would rule.
 THEY rule with an upper hand to this there is no doubt,
 Unless we're little angels we're sure to find this out.
 THE seniors are superior they have complete control,
 If we don't behave ourselves they'll throw us in a hole.
 WE are the geeks and scum of the earth,
 We've been this way since natural birth.
 EVERY time they look at us they open up their mouth,
 Because we are so ugly, we're sure they're going to "ralph."
 WE hope some day to be as cool, as the seniors are at Plainview School.

For the first 2 weeks of school, the kids just seemed to come and go without much excitement. But Homecoming Week came and I began to see a lot more excitement and crazy outfits walking down my halls. Each day was a different type of dress-up day, and sometimes I wondered if I should open my doors and let these people in, but I did. I know everyone got a good laugh on several occasions. Each class gained spirit points throughout the week for dress-up days and the skit at the bonfire. The seniors, 6th grade, and 3rd grade were the winners. My gymnasium also got into the act on Thurs. as it was the sight of the co-ed volleyball tournament. Winning the tournament was Hopkins Hitters; 2nd went to Rathbun's Renegades. On Fri., the students went to my neighbors for freshmen initiation. This was quite messy but everyone had a good time. I'm glad Mr. Busbarn held the mess, not me. Fri. evening I held a volleyball scrimmage with Bethune and the fans retreated to the football field to watch the game. The Hawks suffered a disappointing 18-20 loss to Bethune. At halftime, Jeff Coen and Michele Hopkins were crowned King and Queen. I was happy to be a part of Homecoming finale as Colorado Light and Sound played for the dance, "Groovey Kind Of Love" in my gymnasium which was decorated by the student council.

Football

I began to see my first action for the 1988 season on August 15. Eight young men and Coach Palmer began to throw me around preparing for my first action against Cheyenne Wells. Even though it was a cold, misty day and I was slippery, this didn't stop the Hawks as they carried me into the endzone and came away with their first victory. The Hawks had trouble getting me into the endzone in the next three games. The last game saw the Hawks move me effectively and end the season on a good note. Senior Patrick Kelley led the Hawks in offense as he threw me for 708 yards and carried me for another 750 yards. Senior David Splitter led the Hawks in receiving by catching me for over 600 yards and carrying me into the endzone six times. Kelley received All-Division and All-State. Splitter received All-Division and All-State Honorable Mention.

Will I see any action this year? There is such a small number of girls. But luckily, I was brought out for 1988. The Hawks were young but still gave their all. They did a good job keeping me in play, but too many times I was either untouched from lack of communication or hit into the net. I saw action 8 times during the year. The season was cut short when one girl moved away leaving only five players.

Donna Specht, Julie Earl, Michele Hopkins, Heather Kelley, Jenny Rorex, and Coach Rathbun

The Hawks are ready. Donna serves the ball. Jenny is skying! Our manager is worried. Julie hits the ball. Coach gives a speech. Heather backs up Michele as she does a spike. Michelle R. stands ready. Good job!

High School Pep Club

It has really been rather boring around here lately. No one new had come to me for such a long time. I knew that would change. Throughout the year, I could hear the high school cheerleaders preparing for and performing at pep rallies and sporting events. There seemed to be a great deal of enthusiasm and determination, and I knew they were building for something big. Sure enough, the PHS cheerleaders performed at the DCA Nationals and brought home to me an Outstanding Showmanship Trophy. I displayed it proudly, as it reflected all the girls' hard work and determination for great school spirit.

On Thursday, Dec. 1, I received my first call for duty. The Lady Hawks lost to McClave. Plainview then traveled with me to the Cheyenne Wells Tournament. The first game brought them against Goodland JV. After a loss to them, second round was a close loss to Cheyenne Wells. The Hawks were on a losing streak for the first 8 games before meeting Karval for a win. Boy, was I ready to be handled that night. The Lady Hawks then went on another losing streak. Then Cheyenne Wells traveled to Plainview. The Tigers had beaten the Hawks the two other times they had played them. This time the Lady Hawks got revenge with a win. I could tell this was a young team this year. It was a year for experience. Michele and Julie received All-Conference and Julie received All-Defense.

Oh, the headaches I go through! Just like clock work, every day it happens. Bonk! right on my head the ball falls every day at around 2:30 and on many Fridays and Saturdays. What a relief it was when at last the ball became more of a welcome sight as the it began to fall more frequently through the net. Not only did I enjoy this, but the crowd around me also seemed very pleased. With the boys hitting the net instead of my head my good friend Mr. Scoreboard was very happy to put up points for us and send the Hawks away as winners in many of their games. I was pleased to hear that Tom, David, and Lynn received All-Conference and Frank received All-Defensive.

I was in my second year at Plainview as the 1989 track season began. By the time spring rolled around, my friend the warm up and I were ready to get out and run. Jenny Rorex, Julie Earl, Heather Kelley, Lynn Scherler, Jeff Coen, Frank Lopez, Patrick Kelley, Tom Scott, David Splitter and Coach Palmer made me proud at several meets including the Lamar Relays, Holly, Walsh, the Savage Invitational, the Cougar Invitational, Liberty May Days, Sharon Springs, league at Burlington, and districts at LaJunta. The athletes ran and jumped with me for several placings and a third place finish overall at league. Tom Scott wore me to a third place finish in the 200 m. dash at districts, qualifying him for the state track meet in Denver. Tom wore me proud, even though he failed to make the finals. Well my ol' pal, the warm-up, and I will be tucked away for another year so I will see you in 1990.

STUCO

I was the same as done when I discovered I still needed the story for this page, so here goes. Student council sponsored dances, helped with the teacher of the year selection process, was in charge of homecoming, and helped to make the school run smoother. The officers, Michele Hopkins, Patrick Kelley, and Julie Earl, and the members did a fine job. Okay, I'm done. Now send me to print Mrs. T. So everyone will see me finished this fall.

Scholastic Team

The scholastic team was so close this year to placing very high, but they just couldn't seem to push me quite enough. Throughout the year, under the coaching of Miss Fees, Patrick, David, Tom, Michele, Aaron, Heather, Jenny, Curtis, and Ryan pushed, slapped, punched, and poked me to several placings, but they never brought home a trophy. The first team downed Edison on Matchwits, but then lost to Karval in the second match. The team placed fifth in most competitions. They missed qualifying for the state meet by only one point.

Band Takes on New Dimension

At first glance, we really didn't resemble much of a band because there were so few of us, but the sound we produced was great. There did become more of us at the semester, and it only intensified our sound. The kids practiced with us very hard for the Christmas and Spring Concert. Our music brought a loud applause from all who attended. We even helped excite the school at several pep rallies. We got to know Mr. Leist real well and congratulate him on such a super year.

Mr. and Miss PHS

As my wife and I waited in the warehouse for someone to order us, we had a feeling that we were going to go to a couple of outstanding and worthy people. The day came when we were taken off the shelf and sent to Plainview School. We knew as soon as we got there that we were for a very special award. My wife soon learned that she would be going to Michele Hopkins, 1989 Miss PHS. She learned that Michele was very active in school with sports and extra curricular activities. She seemed a very worthy recipient and my wife was very pleased. I was equally pleased when I learned I would be going to Tom Scott, 1989 Mr. PHS. Tom was also very active in the school with sports and all his extra activities. My wife and I were very proud to read, Tom Scott and Michele Hopkins, Mr. and Miss PHS for 1989, two outstanding young individuals at Plainview.

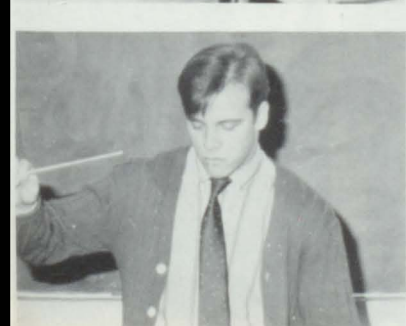

The 1989 Plainview High School Academic Awards Night was a big success as the students and teachers were honored for their hard work and dedication throughout the year. As the names were called and the winners came forward to me, I was proud to be sharing in part of the spotlight. I was very pleased to have the Secondary Teacher of the Year, Wendy Beesley, and High School Teacher of the Year, Janet Palmer, stand on me to receive their awards. Other special awards that were given on me were the first time ever Buteo awards which went to Liz Lopez-elementary, Jodi Earl-junior high and David Splitter-high school. Julie Earl stood on me proud to receive her high scholastic award and David Splitter stood proud to receive the 1989 Citizenship Award. It was a memorable evening, and I look forward to having students return to me to receive awards for their academic achievements next year.

As I held several of the Plainview teachers, school board, and accountability meetings, I saw many faces that I recognized, but a few were new to me. I felt privileged to be such an important place for these meetings to be held. I was able to hear about all aspects of the school from these meetings. My carpet was needing a rest, but I'll be back strong next year to play my part in helping Plainview School be the best it can be.

Eight students filled me with their books, pencils, notepads, candy wrappers, pop cans, pictures and signs for the 1988-89 school year. Each day I was opened and closed several times. Many more times than necessary probably because they forgot material for class. Once my purpose was served, you could usually see one of the eighth graders playing some type of sport, working on homework or working on the carnival. It was good to get cleaned at the end of the year, but I look forward to their return next year.

It was good to see the seventh graders for the 1988-89 school year. We were all curious to see how much they had changed since being the low-on-the-totem pole sixth graders. We kept them very busy with all the homework we gave throughout the year. It was nice though to see them take a break from their academic work and participate in sports and other extra-curricular activities.

During the 1988-89 school year I belonged to an individual class again. I was washed clean and had clean erasers and brand new chalk ready. I was put up before school began. On the first day of school the junior high girls began to serve, bump, and hit the ball over me and into me. They kept the ball out of me very well, and even if it did hit me, they would dig it out and try their best to get it back over me. As a result, the girls came away with 7 wins and 3 losses. Although I will be put away, I'll enjoy being back up in '89.

JH Football

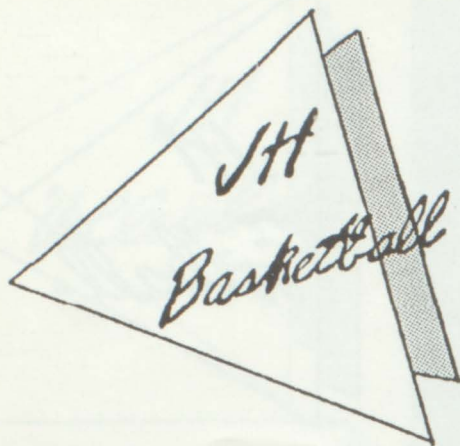

Throughout the summer of '88, I had a lot of work done to me. By the time the football season was ready to get underway, I was in excellent shape and ready to go. The Plainview Junior High football team began practice the first week of school. Every time the boys hit me they gave it their all. Hopefully next year, the team will find victory on me during their season.

Times sure have changed. We remember not long ago when we were put on and pulled all the way up. Now, we're just barely put on and pushed down in a crumple near the top of the shoe. But, that's the style, so we'll go along. We were fortunate to be worn by Melanie, Candis, Christina, Jodi, Kristina, Christi, and Stacey, a group of very gutsy and hardworking girls. They played their hardest during every game and finished the season with a fine record and a third place trophy. Straight up or crumpled, we were so proud of the junior high girls.

Three young ladies put me on in the fall to lead the junior high girls in cheering for the 88-89 sports season. We were new to PJH this year, and looked very sharp. The cheerleaders wore us all during the football and basketball season. The cheerleaders and pep club were very spirited all year.

Well, I wonder where we are going today Burlington, Tribune, Holly, Walsh or Granada? Every time they take me some place, they either sit on me or leave me by myself. At least when it's cold they hold me and show a little compassion! Well, it's back to the bus. Ouch, all those medals the kids won sure are heavy. What a life we blankets have.

Fifth

I have set on Miss Coffey's desk for years, receiving the papers of the students and then having Miss Coffey take them from me and grade them. Hundreds of papers were laid in me throughout the year as Miss Coffey prepared the fifth grade for junior high. Some grades were good, others no so good, but the learning the fifth grade did was excellent and will definitely benefit them in junior high and high school.

Pad, pad, pad — here the children come. Some walked on me, some ran on me, some skipped and stomped but each day I led them directly to the classroom. In the room, they continued to walk on me as they went to the board, Miss Greenfield's desk, or wherever doing their studies. The students learned something new and exciting each day. At 3:30, I led them to the bus as the day ended. I was then swept, cleaned and ready for another day.

We were no doubt the most disliked material in the third graderoom this past year. Day in and day out, the third graders opened all of us some time during the day and studied. The science and math books seemed to be most popular even though those subjects just about drove Miss Greenfield crazy.

Although I have a rather strange job, it was nice to see and hear the children every day learning and growing. Now there wasn't much glamour in supplying water to thirsty mouths, but you can learn so much from it. I saw when the children had been playing hard, hitting their studies hard, or were just taking a break. The second grade was a popular class with me this year because they were such an active group.

Each and every day the 1st grade would come in and hang their coats on me or even sometimes a bag or skateboard. The 1st graders' coats kept me warm during the long winter as they refined their reading, writing and arithmetic skills. I have it pretty easy just hanging around in the hall, but it gets lonely during the summer.

and how we should be used as well as pronounced.

By the end of the year, every kinder knew us well, and we know that our friendship will never end. They will use us every day for the rest of their lives. We will always be with them and never part.

It was sad to be deflated at the end of last year but it wasn't long before we heard the laughter and screams of small children again. All 27 of us became excited. On by one, each of us was presented to the new kinders. It was so special for us to hear the little ones say our names and use us in other words. They would say us over the over and learn about what we sounded like

Valedictorian Address-Patrick

Salutatorian Address-Michele Hopkins

I can't believe it's already May 12, 1989. It seems like I've been stuffed in the closet for years. Mrs. Sherell Stum has just played "Pomp and Circumstance;; the salutatorian address was given by Michele Hopkins, Burl Scherler sang "One Moment In Time," and the valedictorian address was given by Patrick Kelley. Now it's time for the speaker, Mr. Ray Kogovsek, former Colorado representative. This is going so fast. The class sang "Wind Beneath My Wings." David Splitter went to get his scholarships: the Sheridan Lake Lions Club, the Valley State Bank Athletic, and the Towner Methodist Church. Tom Scott also got the Towner Methodist Church and the University of Southern Colorado Leadership Scholarship. Michele Hopkins got the same USC scholarship, the Valley State Bank one, and one from Adams State. Patrick Kelley got the United States Air Force Academy scholarship. Mrs. Janet Palmer, sponsor, presented the class. Well, the kids just received their diplomas from Board President Richard Scott and it's time for me to be turned. Whew, glad that's over. Now I can go back to the closet.
