GRADUATION

Valedictorian Bobbie Jo Mitchell
Salutatorian Amy Louise Bean

Mr. Gene Cosby, Supt. of Schools, Widefield, CO, gives Commencement address, "How to Make a Life." He admonishes students in three areas. "If something clearly does not work, stop and do something else; be a problem solver, but don't waste energy resisting what you cannot change; and adhere to the motto 'I am responsible.'"

Graduates seek the perfect fire and ice rose to carry down the aisle.

Bobbie Jo shares that "friendship is an important part of growing up. It is a complicated relationship." She goes on to say that it involves sharing emotions, patience, support, encouragement, loving, giving, sticking by each other, trust, reliance, and honesty. She read a poem by Helen Stiner Rice called the "Golden Chain of Friendship" which likens friends to "rare and precious jewels" that grow more valuable each year. She encouraged students to take the skills learned and use them well as each goes his or her separate way, but not to forget where home is.

Amy recounts some of the memorable events of high school: homecoming, four great volleyball seasons, being part of three state championship basketball teams, dances, and senior sneak. Along with Bobbie Jo, Amy thanks the community, faculty, and parents for their support in sports, academics, club activities, and class money-making projects. She goes on to relate what she believes to be the graduate's next obstacle: independence. She says, "the choices we make from this day forward will affect our lives forever. We must act with thought instead of impulse." She goes on to say there are many "new and exciting things to look forward to" without forgetting the friendships made here.

Joe Musgrave and Kristi Larrew are among the many EHS students to receive awards and scholarships.

SENIOR WILLS

I, Brandon Arnold, will to certain underclassmen, my ability to take a shower at least once a day.

I, Amy Bean, will to my teammates the ability to put sports equipment on backwards; to Kristi Baxter, my ability to be sneaky about certain aspects of life; to Jennifer Johnson, my ability to fix my hair in under an hour.

I, John Adamson, will to Casey Sheridan, all the good times that I have had at the cop shop. (Go to the sheriff's office like I did; you'll enjoy it.)

I, Brandon Briggs, will to Jason Briggs, my ability to put up with Mr. Monter for one more year.

I, Brad Hopkins, will to anyone who will take it, my ability to get into trouble.

I, Kristi Larrew, will to anyone with enough nerve, my ability to ring the bell early; to Laurie Reystead, my ability to express my feelings and give dirty looks; to the Lady Eagles, my ability to help put the team together and win three state championships; to Brad Larrew, my ability to at least try to stay out of trouble.

I, Bobbie Jo Mitchell, will to Kim Kreutzer, my ability to keep studying hard and challenging myself even though it's my last year.

I, Cari Montoya, will to Chad Rouse, my ability to do my homework; to Colleen Rehm, my ability to keep my mouth to myself.

I, Brad Morgan, will to Jared Stoker, my ability to rope whenever I want; to Matt Weber, my ability to gain weight.

I, Joe Musgrave, will to Steve Rybacki, my uncanny ability to be able to cause trouble and not have to go to the office for it; to Donnie Pettie and Ryan Hope, my ability to skip school on days when there aren't tests; to Greg Pearl, my ability to work at the grocery store for three years; to the junior boys, my ability to ## my way through English and still get at least a B.

I, Melissa Pearl, will to Linda and Mr. Crawford, my ability to park half way in the street; to Kristi Baxter, our combined ability to make Mr. Monter mad and get out of practice early.

I, Doug Weber, will to Jason Briggs, my ability to give the teachers lip and not get into too much trouble.

I, Brandi Weirich, will to Jared Stoker and Tuck Liebl, my ability to throw a chair on top of the High School and not get caught for two years; to Shanna Wyckoff, my ability to make it through algebra without having a nervous breakdown; to Garret Wilkinson and Matt Weber, my height; to Kim Kreutzer, my ability to make it through STUCO for one more year; to Donita Driskell, my ability to have patience with trains.

I, Rachel Zimmerman, will to Dannette Arnold, my ability to always be late and my ability to aggravate Mr. Monter and enjoy the "punishment"; to Dony McPherson, my ability to smile; to Nate Weirich, my ability to get speeding tickets; to Jennifer Johnson, my ability to stay out of trouble and my ability to drive down Main in Lamar and get shot; to EHS, my ability to put up with Mr. Monter.

Motto: "Simply follow your own star . . . You see — there are enough stars for everyone . . . and there wouldn't be heaven filled with stars if we were meant to wish upon the very same one. Mr. Monter's comments on the 1992-93 school year:

The 1992-93 school year has been interesting. Although there were no changes from last year's high school staff, familiar faces were seen in some new places. College classes for high school students were piloted, and new, short courses were added to the curriculum. Students and teachers all responded well to the changes.

Good finishes by the football and volleyball teams as well as a girl's state basketball championship will provide memories of 1992-93 for years to come.

Comments from Coach Crawford: The 1992 football season was a memorable one. After dropping the first three games, many people had written the team off. The season looked bleak heading into league play in regard to reaching the playoffs, winning league, or even having a winning season. We had several new people stepping into positions who seemed to feel that by putting on the uniform, positive things would happen. Following the first three losses, the veterans became determined to make something of the rest of the season, and the whole team decided that they had to make good things happen. It was rewarding to see the attitudes of the players turn positive and the team mature. Reaching the state semifinals was a great accomplishment. This season was one of the most challenging ones for me, mainly because of such diverse personalities on the team, but it was also one of the most gratifying.

Jared Stoker attacks his opponent.

Jared and Tuck relax after a big day.

The 1992-93 Eads wrestling season started out with nine members; seven of these nine went to the 1st tournament and brought home the 1st place trophy. As first year coaches, that was exciting. Although we lost three wrestlers, we still managed to be a threat to area teams with head-to-head competition.

We firmly believe, to be a wrestler, you have to wear your guts on your sleeves. The remaining wrestlers knew what that involved. Each tournament brought new challenges. Although placing didn't turn out as well as planned, these men never gave up.

The Eagles were led this year by seniors Doug Weber and Brad Hopkins. These two have been wrestling throughout their high school years and deserve a pat on the back. Eads High School will be losing two fine wrestlers. Good Luck to them in their years ahead.

Brad's never-give-up-attitude pulled him through the regional tournament. Also, placing 3rd at regionals provided him with an all-expense paid trip to Denver. Brad was able to win his first match but was defeated the next two.

Doug had an up-and-down season with things not going his way at regionals, which eliminated his trip to state.

The sophomores were a hard working, dedicated group of men that improved with each passing week. At regionals, they were bringing things together, and given one more week, we would have taken all the sophomores to state.

Nathan Weirich was a state qualifier placing 3rd at regionals. His trip to Denver will be chalked up to experience, and we're sure he won't come home empty handed in 1994.

Jared Stoker and Jeremiah Liebl were pumped up going into regionals. Both, however, were in brackets that the 1st and 2nd seeded men were upset, making it difficult to place for state. Tuck was able to challenge the 4th place wrestler but wasn't able to win.

We really believed these sophomores could handle anyone that was paired up against them, but it took them longer to start believing in themselves. They ended the season with a terrific attitude, and there is no reason they will not be attending state in 1994.

Matt Weber came on strong bringing home 1st place from the first two tournaments. Giving up weight at each tournament made it a challenge for him, but his ability and experience provided some exciting matches. He will also be a contender at state next year, if he keeps up the hard work.

Along with these men, we began to feel more comfortable towards the end of the season, making us believe that Eads will be a threat during the 1993-94 season. We will have experience under our belt and will have outstanding talent returning. It was a rewarding season for us and, we look forward to next year.
