You are the love, joy and light of our lives. It's hard to realize you are about to graduate. What a fine young man you've become. We are so very proud of all your accomplishments. Your positive attitude, dedication and desire have made parenting an easier task, and brought us nothing but pride. We know you will succeed in the future. Remember we'll always be there for you and we're only a phone call away. Love you very much.

On the 2nd of October, the Plainview Hawks played the Kit Carson Wildcats. The Wildcats came fired up and they were seeking revenge for the huge defeat they had suffered against Plainview the year before. At halftime, the score was 14 to 7.

The homecoming king and queen were announced at halftime. The freshmen candidates were Tanner Nolan and Trista Harris; Sophomores were Robert Smith and Billie Jean Blake; Juniors were Bret Harkness and Kayla Lawrence; and the Seniors Michael Crain, who was king, and Katie Williams, who was the queen. The band played "My Heart Will Go On" from the movie Titanic.

After half, the Hawks were fired up although it seemed almost too late. The Wildcats scored on their first drive. At the end of the game, the Wildcats got the revenge they sought by winning the game by a score of 27 to 7.

Homecoming Week

This year's homecoming was full of fun and exciting activities. All week, the freshmen were initiated by serving the seniors. The student council held games every afternoon for grades K-12. The high school cheerleaders held dress-up days for grades K-12. On Oct. 1, 1998, the annual pep rally and bonfire was held after the high school volleyball game against Granada. It was a cold foggy night but the pep rally was a success. Finally homecoming day had arrived. Oct 2, 1998.

Senior Wills and Prophecy

I, Michael Lloyd Crain, Jr., will my sign shipping ability to Sean Harkness, my ability to take a joke to Christy Hopkins. My consistency in Current Events class to Misty Stum, my body to Josh Galloway, my athletic skills to Casey McDaniels, my creative imagination to Jamie Carney, my ability to do my homework at the last minute and still get at least a “B” on it to all the overachievers, my ability to make jokes about Mr. Pape’s baldness to those who like to keep quiet, my ability not to have a fake accent and lie about it to Heather Winkler, and I will my ability not to have a car throughout my high school career to anyone in next year’s freshmen class.

I, Veronica Geist, will my ability to be natural to all the high school girls, my height to Christy Hopkins, my freedom on the weekends to Jessica Barnes, my ability to sit and be quiet to Heather Winkler, and my ability to eat everything to Misty Stum.

I, Robert Vazquez, master of all things, will my ability to graduate to Josh Galloway, my ability to pick up women to Jay Stum and Zach Specht, my car to Jeana Schroeder, my ability to not look pregnant to Mr. Seay, my non-racial comments to all those white supremacists in this school, my ability to speak Spanish to Mrs. Fees, my ability not to get a parking ticket to Mr. Pape, my ability to stay out of other people’s business to Christy Hopkins, and my ability to be brown to all those people who fake bake.

I, Matthew Shane Miller, will my capitalist way of thinking and my ability not to think that everything is racially biased to Robert Vazquez, a couple of inches of my height and my ability to turn my lights on while driving to Brennan Turner, my ability to get my work done on time to all those infamous procrastinators, my ability to not always be in a bad mood and not always argue with everyone to Christy Hopkins, my ability to refuse to take pictures of myself to Ethan Harkness, my ability to have a sense of humor to some of the teachers at Plainview School, my ability not to change friends every other week to the girls at Plainview, my ability to keep my mouth shut to whomever the shoe fits, and I will my ability to survive 4 years of torture to the underclassmen.

I, Katherine Suzanne Williams, will my ability to keep my natural hair color to Josh and Sarah Galloway, and Justin Crain, my black and white Sketchers to Wal-Mart shoppers everywhere, my height to Misty Stum, my ability to say “no” to Jamie Carney, my ability to take a joke to Christy Hopkins and Mr. Pape, my ability not to go on a before prom diet to whomever it applies, my younger brother Randy to my good friend Jamie Carney, my ability to be myself to whomever it applies, and my ability to stand up for what I believe is right for all those who don’t want to make any waves.

I, Chad Lawrence, will the Harkness brothers my ability to keep a car in good shape, my ability to play football to Casey McDaniel, my height to Tanner Nolan, my basketball skills to Casey McDaniel, my temper to Tyrell Fickenscher, my ability to mind my own business to the Plainview School, and my ability to have fun in class to the underclassmen.

I, Evan Hopkins, in the interest of keeping everyone happy, do not will any of my abilities to anyone.

I, Brennan Turner, will many things. First of all, I’d like to will my height to everyone in this school except Ms. Fees, my 5’4”-140 pounds and muscular built body to Evan Hopkins, and I would like to will my Dodge Viper that I don’t have to Matt Miller.

I, Ethan Harkness, being of feeble mind and body, will the ability to speed and not get caught to my brother Bret, the ability to hit the baseball and run towards someone in football to Casey McDaniel, my ability to put things off until the last minute and to get A’s and B’s to all the juniors, the ability to not be uptight about everything to Ty Fickenscher, the ability to keep out of people’s business and take a joke to Christy Hopkins, last, I will my cowboy collar to Robbie Smith.

10 years later............

ETHAN HARKNESS: After harvest, Ethan joins a rag-tag group of mercenaries who set out to liberate Kosovo. Having not really paid attention in geography class, he spends several years in Mexico asking the locals: ‘Donde esta’, ‘Kosovo’?’. Ethan persists and eventually finds Kosovo is actually located in Yugoslavia...after a short stint in Antarctica (you know, because they sound alike, sort of). Unfortunately, by the time Ethan finally reached Kosovo, there was only one remaining ethnic Albanian in the region. However, Ethan was able to reclaim a tiny portion of the republic for his future bride, Svetlana. He soon grows weary of fighting back the Serbians and decides to leave the country with Svetlana and the 12 kids. They arrive in Macedonia where Ethan is regarded as a war hero of mythical proportions, rivaling that of Alexander the Great. They crown him king and call him “Ethan the Conqueror.”

MATT MILLER: Track star, Matt Miller, after a very impressive collegiate career, found himself at the 2004 Olympics as the favorite in the 800 meter run. Unfortunately, the day he was supposed to set the world record for the 800, he decided to go out the McDonald’s for lunch. The Olympics run 2 hours ahead and Matt missed his race. All was not lost however. McDonald’s heard of Matt’s ordeal and agreed to sponsor him for the 2008 Olympics. He trained very hard and maintained a strict diet of Big Macs. He became the world’s fatest man to ever win the 800 meters at the Olympics. During his days as a “McDonald’s man”, he met Tyra Banks on the set of a McDonald’s commercial and they hit it off. They married and Matt became her business manager and love slave.

MIKE CRAIN: After high school, Mike Crain entered CU’s college of engineering with one purpose in mind...TO RULE THE WORLD! He studied explosives technology and nuclear engineering. He dropped out before obtaining a degree...but that was not his purpose, oh no! He had acquired all the knowledge necessary to carry out his master plan...TO RULE THE WORLD! Yes, so Mike know all about explosives and how to build nuclear weapons. He assembled a crack team of explosives experts who were willing to help him carry out his plan TO RULE THE WORLD! His crack team stormed Washinton, D.C. and strapped a nuclear warhead to former President Bill Clinton’s body. Their statement: “Give us the keys to Disneyland.” Mike disappeared after the “Day the World watched Disneyland.” However, he is know to still be alive because he sends monthly letters to Ted Kazinsky. Oh, by the way, to this day former President Clinton still has a nuclear warhead strapped to his body.
CHAD LAWRENCE: Chad heads to college to play basketball. Chad develops a reputation as an excellent ballplayer and menace to the cheerleaders. He can often be found harassing one cheerleader in particular named Trista. One day he accompanies her to gymnastics practice and attempts a few gymnastics moves of his own. Chad finds he likes the sport and abandons basketball to pursue gymnastics. “Because you get to wear tights,” he says. He excels at the balance beam, although he finds certain maneuvers extremely painful and is often injured. Despite this difficulty, he perseveres to become the first male to compete in the balance beam at the Olympics. Sadly, and injury (the specifics of which will remain a mystery) prevents him from competing any longer. He returns to college where he receives a degree in education. Today, Chad can be found coaching gymnastics at Plainview.

BRENNAN TURNER: Brennan leaves school to pursue a career in business. He soon lands a job as a janitor at a very impressive biotech company. As it turns out one of the products they are researching is a new growth hormone. Brennan insists that they allow him to be a research subject. After several months of using the new growth hormone (formerly tested only on monkeys), he has suddenly reached new heights...8 feet to be exact. He also makes the Nuggets and they FINALLY have a winning season. Unfortunately there is one side effect of the drug...HAIR! In addition to being the tallest NBA played, he is also the hairiest. At this time Brennan has volunteered to be a subject in another research program...hair removal. We’ll let you know how that turns out.

EVAN HOPKINS: Evan heaved for Fort Hays College after graduation to play football. He soon found that 11-man football was his game and earned the nickname “Big Bad Billy Bob”. He was selected in the 3rd round of the NFL draft of play for the Dallas Cowboys. However, they soon traded him when they found out that he was completely unwilling to commit a felony. He was traded to the Denver Broncos. He had an illustrious career as a Denver Bronco in which he was named All-Pro wide receiver for 5 consecutive years. After his pro football days, Evan decides to pursue his life-long dream...the ballet. His days with the ballet were fruitful. He moved to Utah, married 7 ballerinas and fathered 29 kids.

KATIE WILLIAMS: After graduation, Katie enters college to study journalism. During her freshmen year she is targeted by a group of radical college students calling themselves the “Martha Stuarts.” They harass her with homemaking tips and dinner party invitations. However, Katie resists the temptations of a free lifetime subscription to “Teen People” and transfers from Lamar Community College. She enrolls at CSU and completes her journalism degree. She is hired by, you guessed it, “Teen People.” Her advice column, “Kate”, is read by millions of teens everywhere. She soon commands a six digit salary and replaces Andy Rooney on 60 Minutes. Next week’s column: “Why do seniors always get luggage for graduation?...Is that some kind of hint?”

JAY STUM: Jay continues his pursuit of the world’s largest rodeo belt buckle. He travels from rodeo to rodeo searching for his dream, grabbing belt buckle after belt buckle. He finally reaches rodeo nirvana after riding a massive bull named “Sudden Death” for 8 long seconds. Unable to actually wear the buckle, perhaps because it weighs an estimated 8 tons, he mounts it to the top of his trailer. He can now receive free HBO and Cinemax by pointing the buckle in the direction of the northwest sky.

BJ DUNAGAN: Because of a mix up by the SAT testing service, BJ was inadvertently awarded the same SAT score as Brian J. Doonagan, the 1999 Junior Nobel Science Winner. BJ, being astute enough to keep his mouth shut when things are going his way, accepted a scholarship offer by UCLA to study anthropology. “How hard could it be to study ants?” he said. In an ironic twist of fate, BJ enrolls in the Dept. of African Pigmy Studies. His guile and wit allow him to persuade his professors to let him go right into field studies. BJ soon finds himself towering over a group of very small black people who keep handing him a basketball and shouting “Donk it! Donk it!” in very broken English. Fortunately for him the hoop is only 8 feet high in Pigmyland. The coaxing of this particular tribe of small people leads BJ to practice and soon learns to play the game with great skill. Before long the Pigmy tribes come to regard BJ as a god. Rumors of a giant in the African Safari who can play basketball really well spreads to the States. A scout from the Denver Nuggets comes to recruit him. Soon he and Brennan lead the Nuggets to a championship. To this day Coach Kloster is heard roaming the halls muttering, “Darn, Darn, Darn,...”

We apologize...we had technical difficulties and lost the remaining prophecies.
Paige Specht watches as Mrs. Palmer moves Jonathan Splitter’s tassle.

Mrs. Reinert proudly watches as her students receive their diplomas.

Mr. Seay leads kindergartners, Paige Specht, Remington Brandt, Latie Sanders, Jonathan Splitter, Marianne Dunagan, and Steven Turcotte in a song.

Steven Turcotte leans forward to see what Jonathan Splitter is doing.

KINDERGARTEN GRADUATION
Trevor Carney silently prays, "Please, oh please, don't let me trip on the stairs."

Brady Butler soberly prepares to walk down the aisle to his seat.

Kami Stum and Matthew Harkness lead the graduating eighth graders down the aisle to start the ceremonies.

Sarah Galloway congratulates her friend Katy Craft before the procession.

Brandon Murdock, Megan Fickenscher, Tina Dunagan, Robby Crain, Katy Craft, Cecil Colgin, and Trevor Carney patiently wait for their name to be called to receive their diplomas.
SENIOR GRADUATION

CLASS OF 1999

Valedictorian: Matthew Miller
Salutatorian: Katherine Williams

Class Motto: Man cannot discover new oceans without having the courage to lose sight of the shore.

Roni Geist and Katie Williams sing a duet at graduation.

Roni Geist, BJ Dunagan and Mike Crain anxiously await their turn to walk down the aisle.

Ethan Harkness and BJ Dunagan in a rare moment - serious!??
Matt Miller, Chad Lawrence, and Ethan Harkness share a laugh before they have their turn at the aisle.

Bret Harkness, an usher for the seniors, smiles at someone across the gym.

Chad Lawrence takes a moment to think, “This is it! Finally, graduation!”

The 1998 Lady Hawks volleyball team improved immensely during their season. The girls have made great advances in their volleyball skills. The team was able to move quickly, work together as a team, and play without hesitation. The Lady Hawks consisted of two seniors, four juniors, three sophomores, and an one freshmen on the team. The Lady Hawks ended their season with a 6-11 record.

High School Cheerleaders

Kayla Lawrence helps lead the crowd in a cheer, during a boys basketball game.

At a pep rally, Jamie Carney, Brandy Shalberg, Kayla Lawrence, and Christy Hopkins get the students fired up for their game that night.

The Plainview cheerleaders lead the crowd in a cheer to fire up their spirit.

What is so funny Kayla and Brandy?

Kayla, Brandy, Christy, and Jamie said that they had fun this year with Ms. Fees. This was Ms. Fees’ last year coaching the cheerleaders.

The junior high football team had a tough season. They played with big hearts and never let their heads down. The team felt that they could have done better this season but they couldn’t seem to get it together. They hope that next season will be a different story.

By Chad Lawrence
The 1998 Jr. High girls volleyball team ended their season with a 3-10 record. The Lady Hawks had a very disappointing season, but they never stopped showing their positive attitudes towards each other. The girls also made some improvements in their volleyball skills, which will help them later in the future. The Hawks are looking forward to upcoming seasons for which they plan to rebuild and start with positive attitudes.
Zach Specht waits for the rebound.

PLAINVIEW
Well, the last class of the twentieth century has graduated and all of the students have left this building to begin their busy summer.

Soon, the first class of the twenty-first century will graduate from Plainview School.
